- 09/09-08/11 Pre-doctoral Diversity Research Supplement NIAID U01AI034993-16S1
P.I. Mardge H. Cohen
Role: Mentee
Boston University, Women's Interagency HIV Study (WIHS), Chicago Consortium
The supplement to the parent grant (1) explored the relationship between gender role related coping styles (including self-silencing and unmitigated communion) and HIV status and trauma history and (2) explored the role of coping, self-silencing, and unmitigated communion in moderating the relationship between trauma history and health outcomes in HIV+ women including HIV disease progression, medication adherence and other health outcomes.
- 09/11-03/14 Resilience, trauma, stress hormone levels, HIV health for Women with/at-risk for HIV
NIMH F31MH095510
P.I.
This study examined the relationships between resilience, trauma, stress hormone levels (e.g. norepinephrine, cortisol, and epinephrine) and HIV health outcomes among women with and at risk for HIV.

07/15-06/19 Striving Towards Empowerment and Medication Adherence (STEP-AD)

NIMH 1K23MH108439

P.I.

The purpose of the current study is to develop and assess the feasibility and acceptability of an intervention to improve medication adherence for Black women with HIV by combining evidence-based strategies for trauma symptom reduction, strategies for coping with racial and HIV-related discrimination, gender empowerment, problem solving techniques for medication adherence, and other resilient coping techniques. Total costs=$741,788

08/17-05/22 The role of resilience in addressing racial disparities in adverse HIV-related outcomes NIMH 1R01MH112386-01A1

P.I. Howe & Keita

Role: Co-Investigator (resilience in HIV expert) Total costs= $3,092,902

This study aims to (1) use advanced concept mapping, which is a mixed methods approach, to generate items that capture all components of resilience; (2) perform psychometric testing of concept mapping items to create a reliable and valid resilience measure that includes all components of resilience; (3a) examine whether resilience and non-resilience individual-level factors (e.g., alcohol/drug use, mental illness, and health insurance) are prospectively associated with HIV outcomes (e.g., clinic attendance, ART adherence, and virologic suppression) by the level of the neighborhood risk environment; and (3b) assess for interactions between resilience and non-resilience individual-level factors by the level of the risk environment.

08/17-09/21 U.S. Health Resources and Services Administration, HIV/AIDS

Bureau Evidence-Informed Interventions Center for Coordinating Technical Assistance U69HA31067

P.I. & Director Alex S

Keuroghlian Role: Consultant

This national center is part of a new HRSA/HAB initiative entitled: "Using Evidence-Informed Interventions to Improve Health Outcomes for People Living with HIV/AIDS," designed to identify and implement effective interventions for reducing HIV-related health disparities and improving health outcomes. Desired outcomes include increased retention in care, greater treatment adherence, and better viral suppression for people living with HIV/AIDS. The interventions will be selected in four priority focus areas: 1) improving HIV health outcomes for transgender women; 2) improving HIV health outcomes for black men who have sex with men; 3) integrating behavioral health with primary medical care for people living with HIV/AIDS; and 4) identifying and addressing trauma among people living with HIV/AIDS.

06/18-05/19 Motivational Interviewing to Increase Motivation for PrEP Uptake Among Black Woman at Risk for HIV (MI-PrEP)

University of Miami Provost Award

P.I.

This proposal will develop and pilot a brief two-session counseling intervention (MI-PrEP) that combines psychoeducation on PrEP, motivational interviewing techniques, and case management (e.g. helping with access to insurance or medication programs for low-income patients) in a culturally-informed manner to promote PrEP uptake among Black women at high risk for HIV.

Total costs = $17,000
